IN BRIEF

Jewish Senior Life elects directors

Jewish Senior Life Foundation recently announced the election of two officers and two directors for the Board of the Jewish Senior Life Foundation for the 2016-17 term.

Elected officers are Fraida Levinson, treasurer; and Larry Rabinowitz, secretary.

Elected directors are Clare Rotenberg, retired elementary teacher from Penfield Central Schools, member of the Rochester Retired Professionals Organization and associate of the Rochester Childfirst Network; and Jill Vigdor-Feldman, retired communications coordinator for the Brighton Central School District, trustee of the Brighton Education Fund and a board member of the Captain's Walk Condominium

Association in Sanibel, Florida.

They will join 26 existing board members

Jewish Senior Life serves people of all faiths and ethnic backgrounds and is guided by the values of family and emphasizes aging in place.

Nazareth College to offer career planning

Nazareth College recently announced the opening of the Center for Life's Work.

The mentored career planning will begin in a student's first semester when they are paired with a career coach and will continue beyond graduation day.

The Center for Life's Work cornerstone is the Bridge Plan — a personal roadmap for post-college life. The Bridge Plan integrates studies in a student's major, the uncommon core curriculum and experiential learning.

Nazareth named Emily Carpenter the Center for Life's Work director.

"What we're doing is unique and effective," said Carpenter. "It's not a one-size-fits-all program. Instead, it's a dynamic, expansive and personalized process for exploration, preparation and connections that integrates academics with co-curricular options."

Carpenter has worked in higher education for 15 years as a leader in career development and experiential education. Prior to her appointment at Nazareth, Carpenter was a counselor and director of business and finance programs at the University of Rochester's Gwen W. Greene Career and Internship Center.

The Center for Life's Work also named Dale Leyburn and Emily Marchese as career coaches.
